REUSE

Foreword

Football is not just a game; it is a global phenomenon that unites millions of people across diverse cultures and backgrounds. With this immense influence comes a profound responsibility to lead by example, which is why we have launched the new Sustainability in Football Compact Course.

This initiative is a strong demonstration of our commitment to fostering a more sustainable future for the sport we cherish.

This unique course will form a vital component of UEFA's overarching sustainability strategy and is designed to embed sustainable best practices at every level of football while ensuring our national associations are prepared for the social and environmental challenges impacting our industry. More broadly, it is intended to enhance the capabilities of sustainability managers at football organisations in Europe and beyond by giving them the tools and knowledge to drive sustainability initiatives at all levels of the game.

Sustainability in Football Compact Course (SFC)

The SFC aims to equip those responsible for social and environmental sustainability within football organisations with the essential knowledge, practical tools and soft skills needed to enhance and drive sustainable practices at all levels of the game.

The Sustainability in Football Compact Course (SFC) is designed to empower sustainability managers in football organisations by enhancing their skills and knowledge of the topic. Engage in interactive workshops and presentations led by industry experts and academics, covering key topics such as sustainability fundamentals, social issues, environmental impact, policy, and effective monitoring and reporting. Acquire the tools and strategies you need to navigate challenges, secure buy-in from stakeholders and drive meaningful change.

Developed in partnership with EFC and SDA Bocconi, the course ensures the content delivered meets the highest standards and creates a long-lasting impact for both national associations and clubs, while also providing invaluable academic credibility.

Over four days at the SDA Bocconi campus in Milan, you will develop your own sustainability action plan to drive sustainability within your football organisation. By integrating insights and expertise from both inside and outside the football industry, you will gain a comprehensive understanding of the latest trends and best practices.

While the course is intended for sustainability managers at national associations and clubs, it is also open to professionals coming from other key stakeholders such as leagues and other confederations.

Programme outcomes

- A comprehensive understanding of sustainability principles and best practices
- A sustainability action plan for your organisation and for measuring your impact
- An enhanced ability to communicate and advocate for sustainability within key football stakeholders
- Join a thriving network of sustainability managers in the industry

Testimonials

This compact course is a game-changer for the football industry. It will empower the staff of national associations to develop their knowledge to implement impactful sustainability initiatives in their organisations, ultimately leading to a more positive outlook for the future of football.

Laura McAllister, UEFA Vice-President and Chair of UEFA Social and Environmental Sustainability Committee

Sustainability is no longer a choice; it's a responsibility. This course is an excellent opportunity to equip club professionals with the knowledge, tools and network to effectively drive the sustainability agenda. If you're serious about making a difference, this is the place to start.

Programme overview

DAY 01

Creating a sustainability vision and building your foundations

You will gain a broad understanding of sustainability in the football industry while exploring global trends and market expectations. You will learn how to craft sustainability action plans focused on risk mitigation and innovation, and develop the skills – through interactive sessions – to drive cultural transformation for lasting impact.

DAY 02

Tackling emissions, the circular economy and sustainable events

Key topics will include how to reduce carbon footprints by examining emission sources and setting measurable targets aligned with global climate goals. Moreover, best practice examples and insights from leading experts will enhance your understanding of circular economy principles, as well as how to operate sustainable events and infrastructure.

DAY 03

Protecting and respecting human rights

You will learn about human rights principles to ensure a safe, respectful environment, including policies to protect children, young adults and other and vulnerable groups. Learn how to create an inclusive culture by implementing robust DEI initiatives.

DAY 04

Measuring and reporting sustainability

You will gain a deeper understanding about regulations impacting sustainability reporting in football and conduct materiality assessments to prioritise key issues for stakeholders. Data and KPIs will be leveraged to drive continuous improvement and communicate sustainability impacts. The course will conclude with a graduation ceremony.

A word from EFC

Sustainability is no longer an option for clubs, it's essential for the future of football. As the game continues to grow, clubs must take greater responsibility for managing their environmental impact, promoting social inclusion and ensuring long-term financial stability. This compact course has been designed to provide sustainability managers at clubs with the practical tools and strategic insights needed to lead this transformation. From reducing environmental impact and improving resource efficiency to embedding social responsibility in football's DNA, participants will learn how to integrate sustainable best practices into their clubs. With expert-led sessions, real-world case studies and peer-to-peer learning, the course offers a unique opportunity to expand your knowledge, enhance your impact and drive meaningful change. By embedding sustainability at every level of their operations, clubs can future-proof their organisations and create lasting value for their communities and the sport. Together, we can ensure that football clubs thrive on and off the pitch for generations to come.
